

National Family Literacy Day

Posted on 10/30/2014

National Family Literacy Day is right around the corner! On November 1 (and throughout the month) National Center for Families Learning (NCFL) and families across the nation will be participating in fun and engaging conversations, activities, and Maker experiments to further prove what we know to be true: everyday learning is both enjoyable and extremely rewarding.

Don't miss your chance to be part of this special day and month! Sign up to receive a copy of our month-long calendar featuring family oriented learning activities from Wonderopolis and Family Time Machine, and be sure to share this opportunity with your educator and parent friends so they too can join the celebration.

For more information visit National Center for Families Learning.

